THE GREATER MOTHER.

Appropos of Grandma's defence of the tomboy (Woman's Page, 25/6/13), why is it that so little is said or sung of a person who exercises such a wide and far-reaching influence on human life—the grandmother? It is a sort of fetiche, a world-habit, as it were, to place the mother on a pedestal, and to credit her, solely for her motherhood, with all the virtues of forbearance, tact, wisdom, patience, sympathy, and so on, and while no one will deny that the majority of mothers deserve it all, still, as a matter of fact, it is of more often the grandmother who is the embodiment of all these things to a child. And yet, while all the poets and painters of all the ages have been more or less with the theme of motherhood, probably the only lasting tribute paid to the grandmother is the name itself, the obvious interpretation of "Grandmother" being

"Greater Mother."

To the baby, Grandma is a person who always carries one, when father or mother say "You are quite big enough to walk"; who wash one's face with a dos rag; who has the milk and food for the baby, and to have a baby's little fingers rubbed up the wrong way; who can comb the worst tangles out of long hair without making a tender little head feel it in the least; who, if playful, will always hand out bread and sugar or raspberry tart while the family rule is that plain bread and butter or boiled rice pudding is much more wholesome.

To the school child, she is the person who will rejoice when a prize is won, or agree heartily that the other cat must have been a pet of the teacher's when it is lost—why?

Suggests to father that the scholar's report is to be expected at once when some fearsome wickedness of Jimmy is reported, he ought to inquire into it, and see whether it is as bad as it sounds. For Jimmy knows, and Grandma knows, and Jimmy knows she knows that if he waits to inquire into anything, the first edge of father will be worn off; who can always sympathise with any real pain or sorrow, who has seen and heard the scholar's malingerer that one soon acquires a respect amounting almost to awe for her powers of clairvoyance; and, above all, who is always ready to listen straight away when one dares the audacity of suggesting some reason-ably strenuous duty. For grandma has learned that to be scolded when one is at the top pitch of excitement is one of the most disheartening things in life to a child, and therefore, the most utterly useless, because a child who is checked in the first breathless words concerning a fight, a street accident, or a race for life from a ferocious mangost, will never be a hero, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

heroine, or a great heroine, or a great

PUCK'S CHIEF.

I'll put a "little round about the earth in forty minutes."—Midsummer Night's Dream.

Sydney had a grand demonstration of the little last week. On Wednesday the Little Theatre matinee contributed $100 to the Crown Street Women's Hospital fund; on Friday the big matinee at Her Majesty's for the same cause broke all records with over £2000.

Sandwiched between these two was a little gathering at the Town Hall on Thursday when the ball committee handed over to the executive of the Shakespeare Tercentenary Memorial Fund a cheque for £500, the proceeds of the ball. In handing over the cheque

Lady Cullen, president of the ball committee, said that it made her feel quite self-indulgent to have helped in raising so large a sum for something that was not a charity.

And her listeners agreed with her. There was not an amongst these present who has not work of in the cause of charity, and some are responsible for raising enormous sums for the poor; to give one's energies to forwarding a work which is to provide food for the hungry is a noble and a noble pleasurable change. It is not often that Sydney people indulge themselves in the luxury of spending their money on an object of charity and feeling that they have done a good deed. It is not often that they are always so busy feeding the hungry and clothing the naked that "culture" is a little apt to be neglected. We applaud warmly and whole-heartedly those who think of the sick and the hungry, and who make so much of food is provided for the mentally starved, and when the things of the spirit are placed at least in a line with the things of the body, for "man shall not live by bread alone."

Both in the cause of culture and of charity the theatrical profession set the rest of a wholesome lesson in the matter of a true public spirit. While other people were asking why they were asked to help, the word "Cynic" have been heard to say

"Oh, but they like it, and one performance more or less makes no difference to them."

It is a good deal of difference, not only to the giver, but to the receiver. It is a good deal of difference to the receiver, as —as in the case of those who took part in the benefit at Her Majesty's—but in giving a good deal of their leisure time in extra efforts for the benefit of the community.

It is not all the critics who will as gracefully take money and work to any public movement, however worthy, and many of them might well learn a lesson in citizenship from the theatrical profession.

One of the most successful exhibitors at the Royal Drawing Society's exhibition in London this spring was an Australian girl, Miss Janet Allen, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Boyce Allen, to whom was awarded the Lord Lisleman Memorial Prize also the silver star and two second class medals.

The latest Blue Book shows that in Great Britain women earn practically the same wages in trades as different as printing, pottery, and the food, drink, and tobacco trade. It is an average of 10s. 6d. a week.

An inquiry into the earnings of women girls showed that as a common, though not the average, wage, but this is almost always sub-

WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, 1913.

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

To-day the Commonwealth Parliament meets, but under conditions unknown since the suspension of the House of Representatives in 1902. The House of Representatives has not yet been re-elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Representatives has not yet been re-

elected, and the House of Repre-

to take precedence and there is doubt whether the Government has chosen the right one. The traffic from North Sydney can be carried by the ferries, although at a risk which is growing daily more unjustifiable. But the traffic along the streets has already outgrown the capacities of the transit-tramway service has reached its limit. This state of affairs exists already and must continue to grow more during the years which will elapse before the city and suburban railways, even if they were begun to-morrow, can be ready to relieve it.

This is only one of several measures of the Government programme for the new session which intervenes before the State elections. As far as can be judged from the bare outline given by Mr. Holman, the programme for the session consists mainly of measures which would equally accommodate themselves to either party. The introduction of legislation to provide for the handling of wheat for years has been advocated in these columns. The change must necessarily involve some expense, although an increasing proportion of the wheat of Canada is now loaded into cars without the intervention of the wheat elevator. The value of the promised bill for the improvement of the railways, and for the settlement of the railway dispute, for the details of it. Anything in the nature of confiscation would administer a further shock, which in its present delicate condition the credit of this State could ill withstand; but a fair and moderate measure which would secure the amount of good and available for settlement would probably meet with little opposition. The industrial Arbitration Act is to be amended in order to carry out the promises made by Mr. McGowan during the recent labor troubles, but no wholesale or far-reaching changes in the law can be made before the report of Mr. Piddington, the Commissioner of the Railway Commission, to the whole working of the arbitration system, has been received and thoroughly considered. Altogether, whatever forecasts may be made, the public need probably not expect any very great sum of performance from the forthcoming State session. The State session must be provided with a life of the Parliament is prolonged, or it probably will be, to the very latest moment, it can last for a bare couple of months at the most. And during that brief space not only do the vagaries of the pre-

THE SUFFRAGISTS.

DASTARDLY PLOT.

ECLIPSING PREVIOUS EFFORTS.

LONDON, July 8.

The "Standard" in reference to the suffragist plot to set fire to buildings in many parts of London simultaneously, states that the women on this occasion intended to eclipse all their previous efforts in the destruction of property.

It was arranged that on a certain night the suffragists were to set fire to all the leading business centres and the Government offices. With this object they had conspired with a view to the destruction of property, and the burning of a great quantity of dangerous material, which could be removed from place to place in such a way as to ally suspicion.

The French suffragist almost refused to join the plot, and drop bombs simultaneously, but the women who had been approached communicated with the British suffragists.

Fire on a Pier.

The pier at Southport was smothered with paraffin and ignited, but the outbreak was extinguished. One of the shelters on the pier, however, was destroyed. Suffragist literature was found close by.

Sylvia Pankhurst Arrested.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst was attempting to secure a meeting of suffragists in the East End yesterday, when she was arrested.

Her bodyguard struggled fiercely to prevent her apprehension, and during the melee Miss Pankhurst fell.

A Mansion Destroyed.

London, July 8.

Woman suffragist last night burnt to the ground Sir William Lever's mansion, Rivington Hall, Merseyside.

The "Suffragette."

Mr. Whitely, secretary of the Labour Press Committee, who was charged with printing the "Suffragette" after the official prohibition of that paper, was tried yesterday, and sentenced to six days' imprisonment.

The Judge ordered that the sentence should be counted as having begun from the opening of the Assizes, and Whitely was accordingly liberated.

THE SCOTT FUND.

ALLOCATION OF MONEY.

DEPENDANTS AND MEMORIALS.

LONDON, July 8.

The Mansion House Committee has allocated the Scott Fund as follows:

Lady Scott, £500.

Master Peter Scott, £200.

Master Scott's mother and two sisters, £200.

Mrs. Wilson (Dr. Wilson's widow), £200.

Mrs. Bowers (Lieutenant Bowers' mother), £200.

Mrs. Evans (Pilot Officer Evans' widow), £200.

Mrs. Evans (Pilot Officer Evans' mother), £200.

Mrs. Abbott (Seaman Abbott's widow), £200.

Various other amounts are vested in the Public Trustee.

In the event of Lady Scott's death the amount allocated to her is to revert to her son, Peter.

The committee is to pay the £200, estimated deficit on the expedition.

The sum of £17,000 is assigned for the purchase of the scientific results of the expedition.

For a memorial in St. Paul's Cathedral and sculptured bronze figures of the five dead heroes to be placed in Hyde Park, £15,000 has been allocated.

The balance of the fund, estimated at £10,000, is to be devoted to future polar research.

As the late Captain Goss's relatives do not require assistance, the committee will contribute towards the memorial that is to be provided by his regiment.

HOME RULE BILL.

THIRD READING CARRIED.

"A CALAMITOUS COURSE."

LONDON, July 7.

In the House of Commons this evening Mr. Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, moved for the third reading of the Home Rule Bill.

Mr. Birrell moved an amendment, with a view to the rejection of the bill.

He said he thought the interest in Home Rule was dead in the House of Commons, and that the Government were pursuing a calamitous course.

Mr. J. H. M. Campbell (London), moved for the third reading of the Home Rule Bill.

RAND RIOTS.

FURNAL OF VICTIMS.

GRAVESIDE EXHORTATIONS.

IRRECONCILABLE MINERS.

JOHANNESBURG, July 8.

Twelve thousand trades unionists attended the funeral of the men killed during the riots.

A vast crowd thronged the route, and the cortege was finally unable to proceed, and was forced to make a detour to reach the cemetery.

The Right Rev. Dr. Furse, the Anglican Bishop, who conducted the burial service, exhorted those assembled at the grave-side to return to their homes peacefully. No one, he declared, wanted to see further disorder and bloodshed.

The spokesman of the Trades Federation made a similar appeal, adding: "Let no man have a chance to say that we are a disorganised rabble."

In memory of our martyrs, who were foully murdered in cold blood by the capitalist class.

The socialists outside the cemetery sang "The Red Flag."

PRECAUTIONS CONTINUE.

The forces employed in quelling the disorder on Saturday consisted of 700 Hussars and Dragoons, 3000 infantry made up of Scots, Buffs, Bedfordshire, and South Stafford, and 2000.

The Corner House (the principal mining office) is still being strongly guarded owing to the presence of troops.

Her bodyguard struggled fiercely to prevent her apprehension, and during the melee Miss Pankhurst fell.

Practically every gunsmith's and jeweller's shop in the central area was looted on Saturday.

Despite appearances on the surface, the authorities are adopting greater precautions than ever, and strong contingents of troops are now standing to their arms within striking distance of all the danger spots.

STRIKE LEADERS' ATTITUDE.

The strike leaders state that the full terms of the settlement embrace more than was contained in the document that was signed on Saturday.

They, however, resent the condition that the miners are only to be re-employed as they are wanted, and they insist that provision should be made for those who are unable to return forthwith, which, they urge, is more important than providing for the strike-breakers.

The miners are advanced that the leaders, in order to strengthen their position and to weaken that of the militants, are endeavouring to make out that they concluded a better bargain than they actually did.

MURDER BY BLACKS.

A TREPANG FISHER.

PIERCED BY SPEARS FROM A THICKET.

DARWIN, Tuesday.

A boat arrived in the harbour last evening with news of the murder by blacks at Guiton Point, near the mouth of the King River, on the night of July 1, of C. T. Campbell, better known in this territory as Jim Campbell.

The tragedy was reported by Charles Williams, who at the time of the tragedy was also engaged in trepang fishing at his camp, about 20 miles distant from where Campbell was murdered.

Campbell and Williams left Darwin in the lugger "Willie" on May 18, and arrived at Junction Bay on June 1.
